

IU Clinical Cancer Center Indianapolis, Indiana

The Clinical Cancer Center consolidates all adult outpatient cancer programs and the staff of the Indiana University into one facility.

The building is approximately 89,000 square feet and was constructed above an existing 30,000 square feet radiation therapy center. The main lobby and all patient waiting areas look into a four-story glass atrium that opens the interior to light.

Areas devoted to prevention, early diagnosis and education activities, including a patient resource center/library and physician classrooms, will be completed in the near future.

The primary program components include a large education complex, a multi-disciplinary clinic, a women's center, an infusion center, a hematology-oncology clinic, a research data management center and physician offices.
